

Gettysburg Festival

Phipps and Phriends provide bluesy tunes during the Festival's Blues, Beer and Barbecue event which set the stage for Saturday evening's performance by jazz musician Ahmad Jamal.

Briar Rose, a.k.a. Sleeping Beauty, played by Mariah Jemison, dances with her Prince, played by Kyle Meisner, during the Children's Theater performance of Sleeping Beauty on Saturday.

A tasty spread of food and some of Pennsylvania's best craft beer was enjoyed at the Railroad Station Pavilion on Saturday

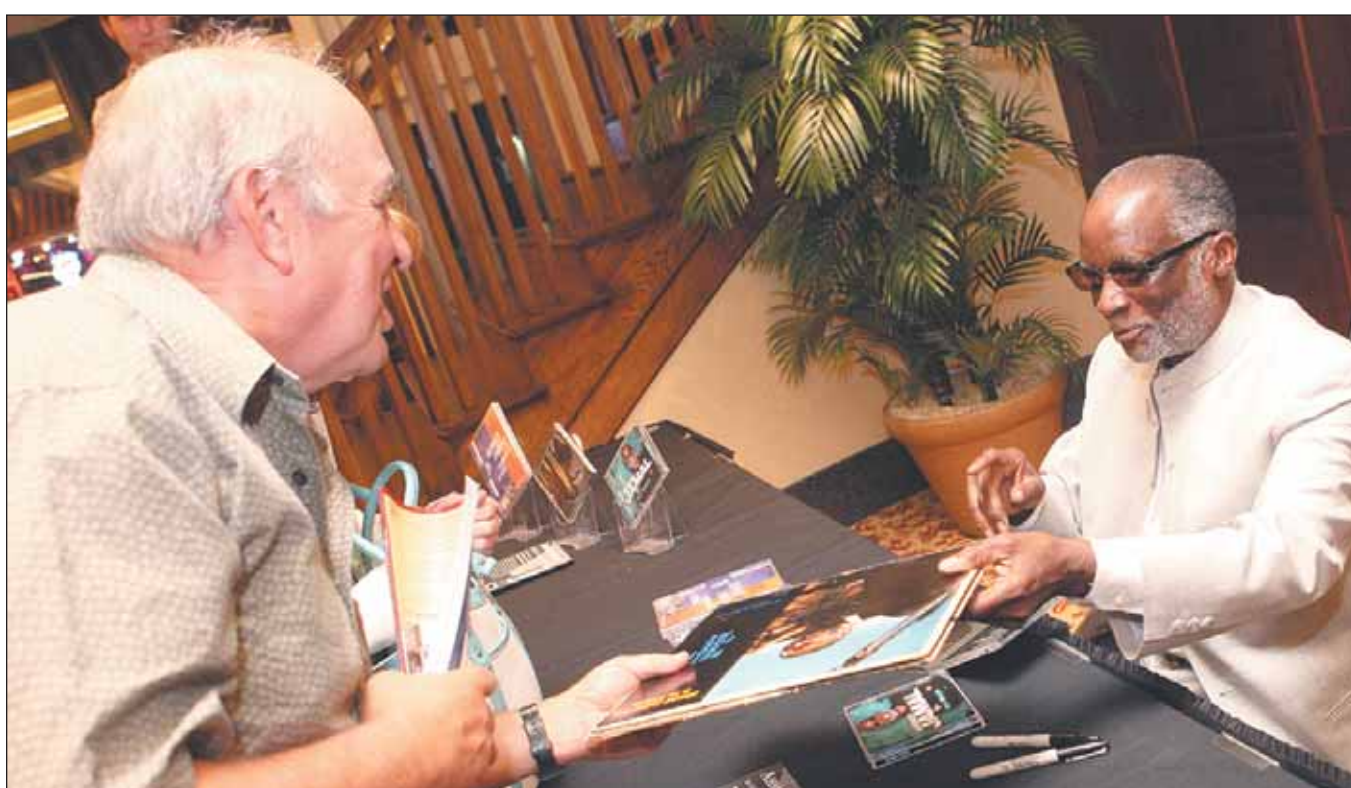

The final day of the Gettysburg Festival featured the Ed Wise New Orleans Jazz Band at 2 p.m. on the Main Stage at Gettysburg College.

Concert-goers line up to meet Ahmad Jamal following his jazz performance at the Majestic Theater on Saturday night.

Ed Wise, with his string bass, brings his brand of jazz music to the Gettysburg Festival Sunday afternoon.

Ahmad Jamal autographs the jackets of three vinyl records from 1958 brought to Saturday's show by fan Ron Hoch of Gettysburg.

The other hand of Ed Wise, pictured above.

Folks gather in the pavilion of the Railroad Station to enjoy Blues, Beer and Barbecue Saturday afternoon.

Gettysburg Times photos
by BILL SCHWARTZ